Sept 2008

Greetings:

Thank you for your interest in No Adverse Impact Floodplain Management.

“No Adverse Impact Floodplain Management” is a managing principle that is easy to communicate and, from legal and policy perspectives, tough to challenge. In essence, No Adverse Impact floodplain management takes place when the actions of one property owner are not allowed to adversely affect the rights of other property owners.

We at the AMFM feel this would be an excellent avenue for the local governments in Montana to take. With the increasing development pressure on our rivers/stream floodplains, we are faced with addressing property rights on both sides of the fence. NAI is an approach that does just that. The AMFM does not want to see Montana become like other states with vast amounts of residences/development in harm's way of flooding.

If you have a concern for the future of property owners as well as development in your community, please consider learning more about NAI and applying it in your community. There is a lot of information on this disk for you to look at.

If you have questions, feel free to contact myself at 431-1580, or Traci Sears Tull, Montana NFIP Coordinator at 444-6654. There is also more information on these websites. www.mtfloods.org and www.floods.org.
